

Ahhhazing Hot Stone Massage with Return to Glory

April 26, 2013

London, England (rushPRnews)
04/26/13 — Hot Stone massage has become increasingly popular in recent years. The use of smooth, water heated basalt stones in this treatment enhances the healing powers of massage therapy, taking you to a new level of relaxation whilst also effectively targeting and dissolving muscular tension. If you love deep tissue massage then you'll adore Hot Stone massage.

Because of its popularity, many therapists now offer this treatment. But clients beware! It takes a highly skilled and intuitive therapist to properly deliver a Hot Stone massage. The stones enable the therapist to get so deep, that it's imperative to know how much is enough. Having suffered at the hands of a second rate therapist who created more problems than she solved, I was reluctant to ever have a Hot Stone massage again, until a friend raved about the ahhhazing one she had with her Return to Glory therapist.

Return to Glory - London's leading Home Spa, hand pick all their therapists. And whilst they have to have a minimum high level qualification to even be considered, as Natasha Dwyer, founder and CEO explains, they are looking for much more than that "A truly fantastic therapist has a special intuition that leads every treatment; not every client knows, or is able to articulate what they need, and we select our therapists for their ability to balance technique with that intangible knowingness of what the client requires and what their body can cope with, this is especially true with Hot Stone massage".

Having the worst shoulders ever and with my friend's glowing review in mind, I booked an In Home appointment with the same therapist, and was staggered at the difference. It was unbelievably good. Being able to slip off the massage couch and into my bed at the end of the treatment was beyond heavenly, and made a massive difference to the effectiveness of the therapy; I stayed relaxed for so much longer than I would normally at a Spa or salon, and my shoulders are now looser than a night out in Shoreditch.

Return to Glory deliver professional massage, beauty and fitness services In Home, In Office and In Hotel anywhere within the M25. With over 6000 repeating clients and celebrity endorsements from the likes of Jodie Kidd, Amanda Holden and Mel B, it's clear to see how their high quality standards have driven their success. Add to that an easy online booking system, super flexible availability and transparent prices with no hidden extras, and I'm simply left with the oh-so difficult decision of choosing which divine treatment to book next!
