professional customer service
staff now offers free domain name registration or transfer with new customer Linux or Cloud hosting accounts.

Technological needs can be overwhelming for some business owners, which is why Tech Logic Solutions provides a professional, personal customer service experience for every customer. The company's current promotion allows new customers, who are signing up for Linux or Cloud website hosting, to register or transfer their domain name for free.

Customers with an existing website domain can transfer their hosting service to Tech Logic Solutions' servers hassle-free. "We have staff dedicated to assist with website migration," said Kenneth Savage, Tech Logic Solutions' executive officer. "Our professional customer service staff does all the work involved in transferring the client's website to our servers."

For customers in need of new website hosting service, they need only choose their new domain and let Tech Logic register it for free. From there, customers can build their website with Tech Logic Solutions' Do It Yourselfer (DIY) site-builder tools or the guided Website Creator wizard.

Tech Logic Solutions also offers a professional, website development service for a more customized look. Depending on the client's needs, sometimes DIY tools are limiting on the design process, or sometimes clients simply do not have enough time to devote to designing their own website. Professionals at Tech Logic Solutions can take a client's website needs and design concepts and create a custom site, while the client focuses on running their own business.

Launching a DIY or custom-built website with Tech Logic Solutions is fast and easy, and with Tech Logic Solutions' constant access to customer service, clients are never alone when it comes to tech support issues. "Our team is ready and available 24 hours a day, seven days a week," said Savage. The company also provides a 30-day money-back guarantee on its web hosting services.

About Tech Logic Solutions:

Tech Logic Solutions provides Internet solutions through Linux, Cloud and Windows website hosting, domain name registration, web development, SSL secure certificates and more. The company was created to keep the "technical" solutions – such as domain names, web hosting, and SSL Certificates – separate from the "logical" solutions – such as website development, e-commerce, and mobile websites and app development.
