

RatetheRace™ Powers Race and Event Reviews for Athletes and Participants

May 20, 2013

Dallas, TX (RPRN) 05/20/13 —

RatetheRace

™(<http://www.ratetherace.com>) is the only objective review site for athletic races and events, has launched its Beta Site. The Beta Site is available to selected users and will be open until end of June.

Rate The Race was founded in 2010 and is designed to help participants find the best races and events and to provide a review and feedback mechanism.

RatetheRace™ is the only objective race evaluation site, enabling participants to plan and experience great races and events. RatetheRace provides experience and comments from real athletes and real people who see a wide variety of race and event choices. The intent of this site is to help individuals select events that meet or exceed their expectations.

The site enables participants to find a race or events nearby or anywhere, review races and events, select races and events based on ratings and link directly to registration, share race reports and experiences and see top rated races in a sport or area.

“We created this site after having several experiences that needed to be shared, so that individuals could better select events and so that events/races that demonstrated excellence would shine,” said Maryvonne Tubb, Founder of RatetheRace.com. “Not all races and events are equal”.
