"We know that there is an increasing number of young people who are interested in the nudist lifestyle" Said Jordan Blum (one of the founders of Young Naturists America). He goes on to say that "I remember going to the Nude beach at Robert Moses ten years ago and seeing that most of the people were in their mid 40's and up... but this last summer we saw so many new people under the age of 35 that it felt like a nudist college graduates party or get together". When about the financial expense of creating all these platforms, meet-ups, websites and events... Jordan just smiled and said: "we are not looking to make money on the people who use the site and platforms but it would be great to get some of my life savings back... but if it takes off (pardon the pun) and I lose my investment then it was worthwhile - it is all about the people and the movement, it is not about me personally".

Their website is geared towards the "younger tech savvy community" - filled with all kinds of social media aspects, personal blog features, forums, profiles and to name but a few. They published a number of articles to help educate people about nudism and the nudist lifestyle as well as recommend trust sites and they also warn people of any bad or misleading sites and organizations. The website and company was created by three young naturists who sank in their life savings into this venture... They hope to have events, publish articles and are trying to get people connected through all kinds of online features (they even have a " facebook" feature and forums).

The Last thing that I would like to mention is the Blog which is called Felicity's Blog. Here we get to see what the nudist world looks like through the eyes of pretty young lady in her early 20's. A young lady in the nudist world is not that easy to come by but Young Naturists America are hoping to change all that! Her blog and the actual website are so popular they have the whole nudist world talking about it and wondering who are Felicity & Jordan?

They also Just announced their next event - Nude Years Eve In NYC - Now that is one party that should be experienced!
